Once, Jane was the big sister, teaching Lily to play make believe and protecting her from thunderstorms. But then Lily grew up. She started making friends and dating boys, while Jane wanted to go on playing make believe forever. For Jane, the line between fantasy and reality had always blurred, whereas Lily lived for a future bright with expectation and change. Inevitably, the sisters found a gulf widening between them- Lily reveling in her newfound love, while Jane could only watch, frustrated, from the sidelines. How had her little sister managed to eclipse her? Then tragedy struck. But the story was not over. . . . Adele Griffin has crafted a spellbinding book, told in the alternating voices of two very different sisters dwelling on opposite sides of life and death, who are bravely trying to overcome the void and bring light to each other.

Amelia Bradbury is the last living Elder. She has power she can't control, a prophecy dictating her fate, a betrothal she can't stop and a heart lost to a human. When duty calls, will she choose her head or her heart?

When Susan and her mother become homeless, she tries to keep it a secret from the whole third grade, especially her best friend Ellen.

In The Salt When her mother's life ends in a mysterious accident, Maggie Atwood must face the legacy of alcoholism and lies that she fled from years before. From the safety of her new life in New Orleans with the man of her dreams, she reluctantly makes her way back to the town where it all began and the past she's tried to forget. It's been over two years since Maggie stepped foot in Haven, a small seaside town on the Massachusetts shoreline, and even longer since she spoke to her mother. The charismatic and troubled Vivian, serial wife and drinker, was a tough woman to love, though everyone did, and now she was dead. Maggie knows that she cannot move forward without diving backwards into the chaos and characters that defined her youth. Upholding a generations long tradition of self-medicating, Maggie navigates her way through thinly suppressed rage and childhood fears in an attempt to figure out what finally really happened to her mother. Swaddled in a haze of Valium and sarcasm, she begins to suspect that her mother's death was not an accident. Determined to understand the motivation behind a lifetime of drunken deception, Maggie delves into the long-buried secrets of her eccentric, wealthy family. What she finds is the heartbreaking truth behind her mother's infectious pain, and with it finally, peace. In The Salt is a novel that seeps into your skin and your bones like a cold New England day. Vivid in detail, imagery and emotion, Maggie's journey from anger to acceptance is one that anyone with an unconventional family can relate to. Is there any other kind?

Majestic paintings by Caldecott Honor winner Ted Lewin illustrate a guessing game that fosters an appreciation of both art and science, while introducing animals in the five major biomes: grassland, desert, forest, tundra, and water. Inspired by his many travels, classically inspired compositions communicate the regal magnificence of five stunning animals: lion, camel, tiger, reindeer, and sea otter. The story ends with a painting of a child and text that reads: I am a boy. I am on the beautiful earth. An I Llike to Read(R) book. Guided Reading Level C.

We've all heard that happiness comes from within, but we don't quite know how to access it. So, we keep looking for it outside of ourselves in material possessions or validation from others. Sure, we get those temporary quick fixes, but not the everlasting happiness we are all yearning for. In this book, Bonnie Moehle shares with you her personal discovery of the source of everlasting happiness, and how to go inside and get it. "Bravo to Bonnie Moehle for her second runaway success! This important book helps us all get to the root of happiness and how to have more of it in our life. The best part is, you know from the very beginning that you are not alone on this journey. Bonnie lovingly holds your hand through every page. So get ready to put a big smile on your face and open the floodgates to the many magical moments awaiting you. I highly recommend this book." - Bronwyn Marmo, Award-winning and bestselling author of The Food Is A Lie: The Truth Is Within.
